BEER STYLE GUIDE:

All beer can be divided into two categories: ales and lagers. There are then numerous subcategories of different "styles" that fall under both categories.

Ale

Ales are top-fermented beers that are brewed at warmer temperatures. They tend to be fairly complex and flavorful with fruit and/or floral tones. Most ales are full-bodied and rich in taste.

Lager

Lagers are bottom-fermented and brewed at lower temperatures. They are typically easy drinking, light in body and mild in taste, with a clean flavor and crisp finish.

STYLES

AMBER LAGER - full-flavored with more hops, malt and overall character than pale lagers.

AMERICAN PALE ALE - gold to amber in color with the flavor and aroma centered around the citrus and pine character of American hops.

BELGIAN BLONDE ALE - light-colored Belgian ale with a spicy hop nose and perfumy or honey-like aroma. Light sweetness and subtle yet complex finish.

BELGIAN STRONG ALE - can vary from pale to dark brown in color and is medium to full-bodied, with a high alcohol character. Includes Tripels, Dubbels and Abbey ales.

"Without question, the greatest invention in the history of mankind is beer. Oh, I grant you that the wheel was also a fine invention, but the wheel does not go nearly as well with pizza."
— Dave Barry

BELGIAN WHITE - also known as "Witbier" or "Weissbier," white beers are made from wheat.

BOCK - a strong, malty lager typically of German origin with a low hop presence and rich, toasty malt characteristics.

BROWN ALE - ranges from deep amber to brown in color, with caramel and chocolate notes. They tend to be strong and malty with an even level of "nuttness."

ENGLISH ALE - a golden to reddish-amber ale with enhanced hop bitterness, balanced with malty aromas.

HEFEWEIZEN - a German style of wheat beer. "Hefe" means "with yeast," which adds unique flavors of banana, apple or cloves with a dry, tart edge and some spiciness.

INDIA PALE ALE - commonly abbreviated as "IPA," this version of a pale ale employs a significant amount of hops originally to help it make the voyage overseas. The added hops give a strong floral note with high bitterness, complementing a higher alcohol content.

PALE LAGER - pale to golden-colored lagers that are dry, clean-tasting and crisp with subtle flavors.

PILSNER - a type of pale lager with a more prominent hop character that takes its name from the city of Plzen in the Czech Republic. Mine out of ten beers consumed today are based on the original pilsner from 1848.

STOUT - stouts are dark beers made using roasted malt or barley. The dark roast gives the beer its unique flavor and color, often with a toasty or coffee-like taste.

TRIPLE - Originating from Trappist Monks in Belgium, the Triple is a complex and wonderful creation. Using "triple" the malts with an even balance of hops, these beers are deceptively strong. Bright and gold in color with a spicy, floral and slightly sweet finish.
